

J. Andrew Tormasi

Vice President of Business Development

Tiversa, Inc.

Andy Tormasi has nearly 17 years of Security related professional experience serving various organizations within the Federal Law Enforcement and Intelligence Communities including the United States Secret Service (USSS), the National Counter Terrorism Center (NCTC), and the Director of National Intelligence (DNI).

In his current role as VP of Business Development for Tiversa, Mr. Tormasi is responsible for business development and technology integration within commercial and government environments. In addition to his current role at Tiversa, Mr. Tormasi serves as a Deep/Dark Web subject matter expert to the Department of Defense.

Tiversa is a Cybersecurity Technology company with a state of the art Deep/Dark Web collection capability. Founded in 2004 and headquartered in Pittsburgh, Tiversa has created unique, patented, and proprietary assets that size, monitor, download, store, and analyze content from the Deep/Dark Web and P2P file sharing networks providing broad coverage and downloading rich data - mainly in the form of actual files and rich metadata allowing to identify disclosure source and other key information.